Someone mentioned to me how impressed he was with your Count to Five Goal planning presentation, which featured in an MIT course he attended. Do you offer an individual session on Goal Planning?

Yes, this is offered as an individual goal-planning workshop. Two day retreats can also be organised for this important subject, when both business and personal goals are dealt with over a 48 hour total immersion session.

Do you offer follow up programmes to your MIT course?

Yes, we offer follow-up mentoring or individual coaching for people that have graduated from the MIT course. This is done only after a careful briefing by the individual's immediate superior, to ensure that the correct deficiencies / weaknesses are dealt with and individual strengths are built on.

What is the minimum/maximum number of people that you will accept for your (MIT) Manager in Transition course?

The minimum number of people that we will accept for the MIT course is 8. We will accept up to a total of 16 people, at no additional cost.

Are the events listed run as open programmes or are they tailored specifically to your clients' needs?

The events have been run as open programmes, but more often they are tailored more specifically to the client's needs.

How do I decide which type of training best suits my needs?

At Adams and Associates, we believe companies and profits are built through people, and so our training programmes reflect personal growth and development. A&A consultants are specialists who focus on assisting the client in determining the long and short term goals of the company and its people, and in evaluating and prioritising necessary skills. In this way, training is identified that is relevant, effective and beneficial to the company and its people - thereby positively impacting the bottom line.
